"Oh! It's good to see you!" said Gilly, excited.

"Do you need help?" asked Lilly with a big smile.

"Oh, thank you! Yes, I did say that I needed help!" answered the woman and looked from one twin to the other. "These bags are really heavy. Can you help me carry them to my house?"

"Sure!" said Lilly.

"Where do you live?" asked Gilly.

"Around the corner[1] from here. I have just moved to this town from Haifa. You girls are very sweet to help me so happily!"

"Yes, we like to help!" nodded[2] Gilly.

"Everyone in our family likes to help!" added Lilly. "We try to help the world."

"Really? That's wonderful!"

The girls took the bags and started walking slowly with the woman to her house.

"My name is Matilda Brown," said the woman. "What are your names?"

"I'm Lilly!"

"And I'm Gilly!"

"Lilly and Gilly, such nice names. But, of course, I won't remember who is who; you both look exactly the same!"

"It's ok, everyone gets mixed up[1]. The kids in our class just call us Gillilly." Gilly and Lilly smiled at each other.
